Zahra's story shows the reader the ways that people's needs and expectations, as individuals as well as nations, affect the psyches of women and young people. Al-Shaykh shows just how burdensome other people's desire for connection and identity can be. The symbolism she uses creates a rhythm throughout the novel which pushes (Arabic, 1980) "There is an ancient tragic faith that strength flows from the very depths of abjection. Those who fall to the bottom of the system are in a sense free of it, and thus at liberty to build an alternative. If you can fall no further you can only move upwards, plucking new life from the jaws of ...
